About the Montessori curriculum

Montessori education is a scientifically validated approach that remains highly relevant in today's educational landscape. Developed by Dr. Maria Montessori over a century ago, it continues to align with the latest research in child development, neuroscience, and education.

At EAC, Montessori education begins with our Toddler Program and continues through Preschool, where children thrive in mixed-age classrooms. K3, K4, and K5 students learn together in a supportive and inspiring community, with older children serving as mentors and younger ones building confidence by observing and engaging with their peers. This dynamic environment fosters independence, curiosity, and a deep motivation to learn, essential foundations for future success.

Alongside Montessori principles, our program integrates Social-Emotional Learning, Child Protection lessons, and Special classes (art, music, P.E., etc.), enriching each child's development and ensuring they grow into confident, capable, and compassionate individuals.

Benefits of learning English during Preschool

The window for language development is most open during the preschool years and gradually becomes less flexible after the age of five or six. Early exposure to rich language experiences supports cognitive and social growth, offering benefits such as:

- Stronger academic performance
- Improved concentration

- Enhanced memory and retention
- More effective communication and the ability to understand different perspectives
- Greater creativity, as language learning stimulates problem-solving, perseverance, and decision-making skills

Adaptation

Once admitted to EAC, prior to the first day of school, students are invited to a classroom visit. These sessions allow new students to meet their teachers and assistants in a welcoming environment.

On their first day of school, parents of new students are encouraged to walk them to the classroom and remain on campus. Once children feel comfortable, parents say goodbye, and teachers will contact parents should the need arise. A robust student support team will continue to nurture new students' social and emotional well-being throughout the adaptation process.

We understand that this transition is significant for families as well, and we are committed to providing guidance and reassurance at every stage, ensuring a smooth and positive experience for both children and parents.
